ELECTION RESULTS IN A FLASH Vote Tallies to be Broadcast Live on County Television Network

No talk. Just numbers. On election night, Tuesday, Nov. 2, the County of San Diego is making it easier for residents to get election results.

County residents can keep up with election results by simply tuning in to the County Television Network, CTN. Say good-bye to the commentary of political pundits and see just the local results on the election and propositions as they are tallied by the County Registrar of Voters. The results will be updated regularly throughout the evening.

"We're going to broadcast election numbers without all the talk," said Michael Workman, director of the County Media and Public Relations Department. "Instead of flipping through news channels and listening to commentators, County residents will be able to get the latest election numbers instantly by turning on CTN."

CTN will air local results as well as statewide numbers.

The CTN broadcast will begin with results from absentee ballots at 9 p.m. Results from polling places throughout the County will follow.

CTN can be found on Time Warner 22, Cox 19 (north) and 24 (south), and Adelphia 66.

For those who want to view the results on their computers, all local and statewide results can also be seen on the County Registrar of Voters' Web site, www.sdvote.com.
